Art by Alabamians
from the Permanent Collection of the
MONTGOMERY MUSEUM OF FINE ARTS

The Montgomery Museum of Fine Arts is the oldest fine arts museum in the state of Alabama, founded in 1930 as an institution devoted to art and local history. In 1972, the museum's board of trustees redefined the scope of its collection to focus specifically on American art.

From its inception, the museum's collection has been rich in material related to the art of Alabamians--those that were traditionally schooled in art academies from New York to Paris—as well as the products of everyday artists with diverse skills and backgrounds.

The paintings, sculpture and mixed-media works that are included in this exhibition reflect the quality of works on view at the museum's facility in the Blount Cultural Park.

The contributions by Alabamians to the legacy of American art and history is varied and profound. The heritage, insights, and points of view reflected in the works of art installed here are a unique reflection of the state's culture and rich history.
