On exhibit: The World's Smallest Band

Robena Perry, Phenix City

This assemblage was started around 2006 to create an advertising piece that could be used to promote a line of clothing (Chaps) designed and made by the artist. The whole assemblage was placed on a small trailer and moved around to Flea markets, where the Chaps could be sold. The CHAP band was the center of the creation. There are over 150 dolls in the assemblage, in addition to many added details.

The Alabama Jammer Electric guitar

Commissioned from the Gibson Guitar Company by the Alabama Tourism Department to tour the state for performances during the year.
